5 Reasons Why Corporate Memberships Matter

Protecting and preserving the Blue Hills Reservation comes down to commitment to the community, resources and people power. Here's what becoming a corporate member means for you and the park you love.

1. Demonstrate your commitment to the local community and environmental stewardship. Supporting preservation of the park enhances your company's reputation as a socially responsible organization, which builds trust with customers and stakeholders.
2. Open the door to opportunity. Being a corporate member opens the door to potential collaborations, business opportunities, and partnerships with like-minded organizations that value sustainability and local preservation efforts.
3. Build a positive company culture. Getting employees involved through volunteer activities fosters team-building, employee satisfaction, and community pride.
4. Future generations (and customers) will thank you. By supporting FBH, you're helping to ensure that the Blue Hills Reservation remains a pristine space for future generations. You'll be leaving a positive environmental legacy and contribute to the long-term health of your community.
5. We can't do it alone.
 - a. One mile of basic trailwork in the park during a 3-hour public event costs about $1,000. With 125 miles of trails in the Blue Hills that need attention multiple times a year, we cannot afford to hold these events without your help.
 - b. Individual memberships can do only so much. With annual individual memberships at a reasonable $30 a year, we would need to triple FBH membership to cover the cost of taking care of each trail just once a year.
